Course Syllabus

Weeks	Learning Outcomes	Topics	Teaching Methods
Week - 1		Introduction to the course and establishing a multidimensional methodological framework for examining family research in autism spectrum disorder
Week - 2		current literature studies examining family structure, the diagnostic and adaptation process, and family-parent quality of life
Week - 3		Intra-family relationships and their reflections on education I: Research on parent-child interaction and the involvement of mothers and fathers in the process
Week - 4		Intra-family relationships and their reflections on education II: Studies addressing sibling relationships and the impact of extended family members such as grandparents on the process
Week - 5		Research evaluating the family's relationship with professionals, interdisciplinary teamwork, and professional collaboration processes with families
Week - 6		Use of technology in family support services: Research focused on tele-education applications and digital support networks
Week - 7		Midterm evaluation: Critical literature review and in-class presentation of family research articles selected by students
Week - 8		Family life cycle I: Parent education in early childhood interventions and research on changing family needs during the transition to school age
Week - 9		Family life cycle II: Research on adolescent issues, employment, independent living processes, and the changing role of the family during the transition to adulthood
Week - 10		Social and societal dimension of research: Research on the family's position in society, labeling, stigmatization, and family isolation

Course Syllabus

Weeks	Learning Outcomes	Topics	Teaching Methods
Week - 11		Determining family support needs, psychosocial support models, and family empowerment approaches such as parent-to-parent support
Week - 12		Rights-based approaches in family research: Research on families' organizing processes, struggles for legal rights, and advocacy skills
Week - 13		Methodological approaches in family research: Research ethics, data collection principles, and considerations when working with parents
Week - 14		Identifying research needs in the literature and preparation and presentation of research proposal projects

Learning Outcomes

#	Learning Outcome
1	Critically analyzes family research in the autism spectrum disorder literature within a multidimensional methodological framework (subject, purpose, method, participants). Evaluates the effects of the diagnosis, adaptation process, and life cycle stages (from early childhood to adulthood) on the dynamics of mothers, fathers, siblings, and the extended family. Applies research ethics, appropriate methods, and data collection principles in scientific research conducted with parents and family members. Interprets the effectiveness of family-professional collaboration, interdisciplinary teamwork, and digital support/tele-education applications in family empowerment processes. Synthesizes the social isolation of the family, labeling/stigmatization processes, and advocacy and legal rights-seeking skills with a rights-based approach. Designs an original research proposal in accordance with scientific rules by identifying research needs and gaps in the literature.
