Mode of Delivery	Face-to-face written and oral qualifying examination before a jury. This record represents an examination stage assessing competence in the field rather than a regular weekly taught course. The examination and assessment are conducted in accordance with the applicable graduate regulations and Institute decisions.
Place of Delivery	On Campus
Used Educational Platforms	Face-to-face
Prerequisites	There are no course-specific prerequisites or co-requisites. Eligibility for the qualifying examination is governed by the applicable graduate regulations and Institute decisions.
Courses Recomended	None.
Recommended Resources	Reading materials from completed graduate courses in Painting; books and peer-reviewed publications on modern and contemporary art history, art theory, aesthetics, art criticism and artistic research methods; artists’ writings and exhibition catalogues; current literature relevant to the student’s research direction. Anadolu University Graduate Education and Examination Regulations and the Graduate School’s current qualifying examination guidance.
Work Placement	No work placement. Knowledge of the field and research competence are assessed through written and oral examination.
Aims of the Course	To assess the student’s advanced theoretical, historical and artistic knowledge in Painting and their competence in critically evaluating contemporary art issues, conducting independent research and developing original artistic work. Students are expected to justify the relationships between art theory, methodology, ethics and their own research direction in written and oral form.
